

Post-Doctoral Fellow in Patient Engagement and Knowledge Translation

The Canada Research Chair in Patient-oriented Knowledge Translation is seeking a Post-Doctoral Fellow to assist in leading a research program on patient engagement in research, including the Citizen Science Initiative (funded by the BC SUPPORT Unit). Objectives of the research program are to understand patients' experiences as research partners, and to develop an online infrastructure to engage the public, including patients, as partners throughout the research process.

Under the supervision of Dr. Linda Li, the Post-Doctoral Fellow will work independently within a research team based at Arthritis Research Canada to oversee the patient engagement projects and assist in the development of a training program. This team currently has 2 post-doctoral fellows, 3 PhD/MSc students and 5 research staff members. The successful candidate will have opportunities to work with teams at the Graduate Programs of Rehabilitation Sciences, University of British Columbia. He/she is expected to be competitive in peer-reviewed post-doctoral fellowship awards.

Qualifications and skills include:

- PhD degree in health services research or related areas. A background in sociology and knowledge translation research is an asset.
- An excellent record of academic achievement, including peer-reviewed publications and provincial/national scholarship awards.
- Excellent skills in qualitative research methods. Training in mixed qualitative/quantitative methods design is an asset.
- Excellent communication and organizational skills.

The position will commence in September 2018. Please send a cover letter, CV, and names of three references to:
